Maybe during remodeling or moving. A few of our personal recommendations for storing art:

1. Paintings on canvas need to breathe, so avoid covering them with glass.

an exhibition.

2. Similarly, covering artwork tightly with plastic isn't the best idea since humidity can get to it, and mold might start growing

4. My favorite option is to use non-abrasive polyethylene foam pouches. They're lightweight, breathable, stop UV light, economical, and provide some protection from physical damages as well.	3. Cotton sheets are actually a good option: they stop direct sunlight, let the painting breathe, and don't scratch its surface.
